Secret Investigations of Monopolies Made By Justice Department

OIL ONLY ONE PHASE

Petroleum Action Promises to Be Greatest Ever Mapped By U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(UP)—With most of the nation's major oil companies and their officials already under indictment, the Department of Justice's anti-trust division today appeared to be in the midst of a well organized trust-busting campaign.

Working quietly, the anti-trust divisions, trained lawyer-investigators have been gathering material in several other similar cases for some time.

Secret Inquiries

Following the usual justice department policy, however, most of the investigations have been secret. One major investigation revealed has been into alleged collusive and identical bidding on government contracts.

The indictments against petroleum industry leaders, handed down by a Madison, Wis., federal grand jury, all brought criminal charges instead of civil complaints, a rather unusual procedure in anti-trust cases.

The 23 petroleum companies, three trade journals, and 58 individuals named in the indictments are charged with having conspired to fix spot market gasoline prices at artificially high levels and thus force distributors in 10 midwestern states to pay abnormally high prices.

Leaders Indicted

SLAYER OFFERS PRAYERS FOR HIS EXECUTIONERS

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 5.—(UP)—Edward Metelski, 26-year-old murderer, died in the electric chair last night praying that God would forgive his executioners for murdering an innocent man.

He was convicted of killing State Policeman Warren G. Tenser last November in flight from a Philadelphia cafe holdup, but always contended that a companion, "Whitey" Morton, fired the shot.

Morton returned to Philadelphia after the shooting and committed suicide.

JUSTICE LEARNS WHAT MAKES BAD CHECKS BOUNCE

Bounce, bounce go the checks signed by Leroy Thompson, of Bourneville. In jail last week, he was turned out because he made good a $12 check given to Parker Adkins, E. Main street.

Then came the fees of Squire H. O. Eveland's court. It cost money to go to Bourneville after Thompson, and then came docketing, and filing, and all that. When the costs were tallied Thompson owed the justice of the peace $36.05. He wrote out a check, which he gave the squire. Eveland cashed it, and waited. Then it bounced back, right into the lap of the justice of the peace.

Constable Oscar Woerber was given a warrant and the aid of Deputy Sheriff R. E. Armstrong on his trip to Ross county to get Thompson.

Eveland will refuse to accept a check if Thompson offers to pay further costs in his court.

RESUME FIRING ORDER OF MARY

Film Star Refuses Peace Overtures in War With Former Husband

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Mary Astor and her former husband, Dr. Franklin Thorpe, resumed today all efforts to end their fight over the custody of their four year old daughter, Marilyn, indicating it had to go on, no matter the result.

Miss Astor gave her attorneys detailed instructions for a searching investigation of Dr. Thorpe's career before he married her. She wishes to prove that, in becoming her husband, he contracted a bigamous marriage.

On the other side, Dr. Thorpe and his attorneys decided to insist, when the trial is resumed next week, on a public reading of Miss Astor's diary, in which she confessed her love for a "George," and, according to Dr. Thorpe's attorney, mentioned a number of men high in the motion picture world.

ONLY FLIRTING, WIFE'S IDEA OF MARY, GEORGE

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Mary Astor and playwright George S. Kaufman merely had a harmless flirtation, Mrs. Kaufman told the Daily Express today.

"I knew all about the case before it caught the limelight," she said in an interview. "I know Mary Astor well. My husband met her just about this time a year ago. I was in Honolulu and he was working in Hollywood. They had a flirtation. I cannot see there was any harm in that.

"Is it unusual for a husband to flirt with an actress? We married 20 years ago. We are adults leading our lives in adult fashion. George is a good husband. I love him very much and he is in love with me despite things that may happen.

"I heard about this Mary Astor business when I returned home. I entertained Miss Astor there.

"Please don't ask me to discuss Miss Astor. She is a film actress who kept a diary. Very stupid, that, but I prefer to remain outside this affair."

Mrs. Kaufman has been vacationing in Europe for the last three weeks.

MERCURY DROPS 14 DEGREES DUE TO LIGHT RAIN

Cooler weather came to Circleville Wednesday. Rain fell Tuesday to provide suffering pastures and late crops with much-needed moisture. Dr. H. R. Clarke's government gauge registered .34 of an inch, the best total rainfall in any 24 hours this summer.

The temperature prior to the rain was above the 90-degree mark, but it was down to 76 at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

The smoke stack on the heating plant in the rear of the county jail was damaged by lightning that accompanied the rain. A number of bricks were thrown into the alley as the bolt struck the tall stack. The extent of damage is not known.

Many parts of southern Ohio were benefitted by rainfall Tuesday afternoon and evening. Cincinnati reported 2.2 inches. Dayton had only a light rain, while streets in Ripley, Brown county river, town, were flooded.

Though the rainfall is certain to have added some crops, Ohio department of agriculture experts say the corn crop remains below the 50 per cent mark.

DAVEY PREDICTS ERASURE OF ACT BY OVERWHELMING BALLOT IN NOVEMBER

COLUMBUS, Aug. 5.—(UP)—With more than 600,000 signatures on file at the secretary of state's office today, a vote on the proposal of Governor Davey to repeal the sales tax on food for home consumption was assured for the Nov. 3 election.

Only 220,000 signatures of qualified voters to petitions were needed to place the question on the ballot.

Gov. Davey filed the petitions personally with Secretary of State George S. Myer.

"I consider this to be one of the greatest achievements in the history of Ohio," the governor said. "The result will affect favorably the pockets of every citizen in the state. I confidently predict that the tax on food will be repealed by an overwhelming vote."

SCHOOLS NAME ART DIRECTOR

Mrs. Brunelle P. Downing to Head New Department of City Institutions

Circleville school children will be provided the advantages of an art department and a supervisor during the next school year as a result of action by the board of education Tuesday evening.

The school board voted to establish the department for one year, and employed Mrs. Brunelle Parrett Downing, 214 E. Main street, as the supervisor.

Mrs. Downing has had much experience in art work, being employed for 11 years as art supervisor in the Springfield, O., elementary grades. She was in charge of art work in the Wittenberg college, Springfield, summer school for five years.

Prior to accepting the Springfield position, Mrs. Downing taught art in Sandusky for three years and in Findlay for one year. She has been re-employed at Springfield, but will resign. Her training and experience assure Circleville children of a splendid opportunity.

Interest in establishment of an art department has been growing since the school exhibit was conducted during the last few weeks of the school term. Every grade in the city participated and the results produced by the pupils and their teachers gained much favorable comment.

Mrs. Downing's salary was not disclosed.

Superintendent Frank Fischer was unable to recommend a new commercial and biology instructor for employment. Charles Spitzer of Carey, employed to replace C. Alton Day, has accepted another position.

LANCASTER JAIL PRISONER LOSES GASPIPE MACE

LANCASTER, O., Aug. 5.—(UP)—A piece of gaspipe bound with wire was found in the cell of Denver Walton, 24, in the Fairfield county jail. A fellow prisoner who found the weapon turned it over to Sheriff W. J. Beihorn. Walton was charged with cutting with intent to kill.

THIRD OLYMPIC TITLE IS WON BY JESSE OWENS

OLYMPIC STADIUM, BERLIN, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Jesse Owens of Ohio State swept to his third Olympic title today—the first "triple" since Pavo Nurmi's in 1924.

Owens, who had won the 100-meter and broad jump titles, completed the sweep by running to victory in the 200 meter race, duplicating the performance of another American negro, Eddie Tolan, who won both sprints in the 1932 Olympics.

Owens covered the distance in 20.7 seconds, a new Olympic record.

That was one-tenth of a second slower than the official world record held by Roland Locke of the United States.

Labor Trial With "Defendants" Absent

PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN of the American Federation of Labor is pictured in Washington presiding at the "trial" of the industrial union faction of the A. F. of L. on charges of "insurrection and rebellion." As the federation's executive council weighed a compromise as proposed by Henry Ohl, Jr., president of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, Green expressed diminished hope for a peaceful settlement. The "insurrections," John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and 11 other union leaders who contend that all the workers in each big industry should belong to one big union, failed to show up when the council started the "trial." In the meantime the Lewis group asserts it is gaining thousands of recruits in its drive to unionize the steel industry and other large industries. Its membership soon may exceed that of the A. F. of L.

Dictator Holds Sway in Greece

Gen. Metaxas Assumes Role of Dictator With Consent of King George

ATHENS, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Greece joined today the roster of Europe's "strong man" states.

Gen. John Metaxas, born on Ithaca island which was the birthplace of Ulysses, became dictator to Greece's 6,750,000 people, under and with the approval of King George II.

In a terse series of decrees, Metaxas declared martial law, dissolved parliament, postponed elections indefinitely and mobilized all workers in essential services such as railways in order that, called to the colors, they would be directly under government control.

The action, approximating in its force a legal coup, was taken, it was announced, because of the declaration by Communists of a general strike that seemed likely to lead to serious disturbances and bloodshed.

Strong guards were mounted at power stations, gas works and other vital points and all soldiers and police not on guard duty were held in barracks ready for action.

BOY CONFESSES KIDNAP STORY WAS IMAGINED

Too many dime novels and wild west movies caused Raymond Lockard, 18, to tell a "tale" of abduction and threats against his life, Police Chief W. F. McCrady believes.

Young Lockard had the police department running around in circles Tuesday morning when he reported he was tied up by two men and thrown into a ditch north of Circleville after he found the men acting mysteriously in the rear of an E. Main street store. Lockard was taken step by step over the route he said the men hauled him, telling him they intended to burn out his eyes. After the trip Chief McCrady said he doubted Lockard's story, believing it was "imaginative."

Tuesday evening, the youth, who was graduated from Circleville high school last June, admitted he "made up" the story.

Curfew Shall Ring, Says Mayor Graham

Old Ordinance Seen as Means of Reducing Juvenile Delinquency in City

Mayor W. J. Graham took a step Wednesday to clear the uptown streets of children during the late hours of the night. Loitering juveniles have resulted in many protests made to the police department and to juvenile authorities in recent months.

The mayor will inform council this evening of his plan to ring a curfew. What bell will be used is not yet certain.

The city has an ordinance, passed years ago, ordering children under 15 years of age off the streets before 8:30 o'clock in the evening between April 1 and October 1, and before 7:30 in the evening between October 1 and April 1.

The ordinance is listed in statutes grouped in 1907. The year it was approved is not known to city officials.

Mayor Graham said Wednesday that he blames much juvenile delinquency to the fact that children can be seen in the uptown streets nearly every hour of the night. "I believe," he said, "that a curfew, properly enforced, will clear up this situation."

Asks More Alimony

DISSATISFIED with the outcome of a secret separation agreement made two years ago, Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, Jr., wife of the son of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, will go to court at Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 11, to ask a legal separation and increased alimony. The separation suit was filed four months ago by Mrs. Smith, who is living with her parents in Syracuse. The Smiths eloped in 1924.

JOHN GOFF, 86, INDIAN FIGHTER, DIES AT HIS HOME

John Goff, 86, who served under Custer in the Indian wars, died Wednesday at 3 a. m. at his home, 213 Walnut street. Mr. Goff had been seriously ill four days with a heart ailment.

The funeral will be Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the United Brethren church with Rev. T. C. Harper officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery, Mader & Ebert in charge. The body will be taken to the home Thursday noon where friends may call.

Mr. Goff was a member of Company C, First regiment of the United States infantry, serving through many of the Indian encounters. He was not serving with Custer at the time of the massacre by Sitting Bull's Sioux Indians.

Mr. Goff was a native of Circleville, born August 14, 1849, a son of Isaac and Eleanor Zimmerman Goff. He married Rosa Lemley Sept. 1, 1889 in Circleville.

Surviving are the widow, seven children, Leo of Akron, Mrs. Emma Grifey, Allen A., Mary E., Mrs. Reta Stonerock, Mrs. Lida M. Ross, all of Circleville, and Ralph Goff of Akron. Three children preceded their father in death. A sister, Mrs. Lida Massey of Columbus, also survives.

He was a member of the United Brethren church.

HUBBARD'S DOG FINALLY FED BY EMILE DIONNE

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 5.—(UP)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo said today reading of nursery rhymes to the Dionne quintuplets probably would be confined for a few days to the more "cheerful" ones.

His decision results, he said, from the tearful intervention of Emilie in the tale of old Mother Hubbard and her bare cupboard.

The quins were read the story by one of their nurses Monday night, and all except Emilie heard the Mother Hubbard's dog quite calmly. Emilie, however, was overcome by the tragedy of the hungry dog and went to bed, and eventually to sleep, with her face tear-streaked. Yesterday morning at breakfast the quins were served bacon. Emilie left the table and soon returned carrying the nursery book opened at the picture of Mother Hubbard and her dog. She took a piece of bacon, placed it directly under the dog's nose and then, all smiles, finished her meal.

When Dr. Dafeo arrived at the nursery Emilie showed him the bacon-smearing picture of the dog, and assured him, he says, in her own way that everything was all right as the dog had enjoyed his meal.

SUSPENSION OF REBEL FACTION SEEMS CERTAIN

Federation Receives Threat Just Before Vote on Heresy Charges

NEW LEAGUE CONSIDERED

Dubinsky Predicts Ouster After Conference With President Green

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Leaders of John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization warned the American Federation of Labor today that suspension of the rebel unions will split the American labor movement and lead to formation of a rival labor organization.

It was learned that the warning was submitted to the Federation in an informal conference a few minutes before the executive council assembled to vote on Lewis charges presented against the Lewis group.

Ouster Expected

At the time the warning was presented, it was believed certain that the Federation executive council was determined to vote to suspend the rebel group.

Whether the warning affected the council's decision was not known.

The split in the Federation and possibility of formation of a competing group by the Lewisites has been openly predicted as a likely result of the bitterness resulting from the heresy trial.

It was revealed that the old warning was presented to the A. F. of L. by a spokesman for the Lewis group.

New Labor Move

"If the executive council goes ahead and suspends these unions," the spokesman said, "there is no doubt whatever that a new labor organization will be formed."

Members of the Lewis group feel that suspension is virtually certain to be voted by the executive council.

David Dubinsky, CIO member and also a member of the executive council, conferred with President William Green of the Federation. Continued on Page Three

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Patrolman Matthew J. Flaherty, 27, was aroused from sleep early today by a noise outside the door of his home. He shouted, "who's there," and waited. There was no response.

When the door started to open he fired three shots from his service revolver. A form slumped forward into the room.

Dawes, Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Gulf Oil Corporation, Pure Oil Co., Shell Oil Co., Sinclair Refining Co., Texas Co., Cities Service Co., and Socony-Vacuum Co. Conviction would carry maximum penalty of $5,000 fine and imprisonment for one year.

The case promises to become one of the most important anti-trust actions ever undertaken by the government. Total assets of those indicted probably amount to several times as much as any previous group taken to task by the government in a single anti-trust case.

Officials said several of the major companies have property and holdings throughout the world, and that the personal fortunes of the 58 individuals alone would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Meanwhile, officials decline to make any comment on progress in the investigation of collusive bidding on government purchases, but it was understood considerable evidence had been gathered which tended to show collusion between companies within several individual industries.

The investigation is being made at the direct request of President Roosevelt who cooperated with the justice department by asking all department heads to go through their files and report all instances of identical bidding.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 5.—(UP)—In a last minute maneuver, old age pension advocates yesterday forced the Republican state assembly to go on record supporting a proposed amendment to the state constitution providing a minimum of $45 a month to persons over 60 years of age.

The action came from the floor after a resolutions committee submitted a platform referring vaguely to the old age pension question. Pensioners on the floor forced a vote on the issue and secured over a two to one majority from the 1,216 delegates.

harm Miss Astor's career in the movies, were trying to arrange an amicable, out of court session. Miss Astor's employer, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was said to be alarmed by court revelations that have linked her name with that of George S. Kaufman, the playwright, and was bringing pressure on Miss Astor. There was no confirmation of these reports and Miss Astor's actions indicated that if there had been pressure, she had resisted it.

Probe Continues

Representatives of her attorneys prepared to leave for Tampa, Fla., to take depositions from persons said to be in a position to swear that Dr. Thorpe lived there with Mrs. Lillian Miles as man and wife in 1926. Mrs. Miles was an interested spectator at the court sessions where Miss Astor confessed her love affair with Kaufman. Earlier one of Miss Astor's witnesses had named her as among four women she said had spent nights in Dr. Thorpe's bedroom.

Judge Goodwin J. Knight held Miss Astor's diary—which she said Dr. Thorpe had "stolen" from her home—and he will determine when the hearing resumes what part of it will go into the court record. He indicated that he would admit only those parts that bear directly on the point at issue—whether Miss Astor or Thorpe shall have custody of their daughter. Thorpe's attorneys indicated they would insist on the admission of all the diary, on the ground that it all bore directly on their contention that Miss Astor is not a fit mother.

Continues Film Work

Meanwhile, Miss Astor worked on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot filming "Dodsworth." Her employer, Samuel Goldwyn, obtained the postponement of the trial, ostensibly so that the filming would not be delayed.

"I'm only interested in the truth," she said. "I don't care who it hurts. I want my baby."

"My testimony speaks for itself. I said my friendship for Mr. Kaufman was well known to my husband and there is very little that need be added to that."

John Barrymore, famous stage and screen lover named by Thorpe's attorneys as a possible witness, was removed, at least temporarily, as a figure in the case by a heart specialist's report to superior court. It would endanger Barrymore's life to appear as a witness, the specialist said. Barrymore is in a rest home and it will be six to eight weeks before he has recovered sufficiently from a strained heart muscle to subject himself to any excitement without danger.

G. O. P. SELECTS MT. STERLING FOR OHIO OPENING

Ohio Republicans will gather in Mt. Sterling, home town of John W. Bricker, G. O. P. nominee for governor, either August 17 or 18 to formally open the state campaign. The meeting was decided at a conference of the Republican state campaign committee in Columbus Tuesday evening.

The promised visit of Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, candidate for the vice presidency, may force a change in the date for the Mt. Sterling meeting.

The nine-member campaign committee, with Ed Schorr of Cincinnati as chairman, includes Charles R. Frederickson of Coshocton, Mrs. Mary L. Forrest of Cleveland, W. Dale Dunifon of Van Wert, R. C. Snyder of Norwalk, Louis H. Brush of Canton, Nolan Boggs of Toledo, John S. Knight of Akron, and Wilson Heisey of Newark.

POLICEMAN KILLS

BRIDE, THINKING HER A PROWLER

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Patrolman Matthew J. Flaherty, 27, was aroused from sleep early today by a noise outside the door of his home. He shouted, "who's there," and waited. There was no response.

When the door started to open he fired three shots from his service revolver. A form slumped forward into the room.

On the threshold he found the body of his bride of three months. Two hours later, Mrs. Flaherty, 27, died in a hospital.

Flaherty, who said that he did not notice that his wife was not in the bed and thought the intruder was a burglar, was arrested on a manslaughter charge.

Dawes, Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Gulf Oil Corporation, Pure Oil Co., Shell Oil Co., Sinclair Refining Co., Texas Co., Cities Service Co., and Socony-Vacuum Co. Conviction would carry maximum penalty of $5,000 fine and imprisonment for one year.

The case promises to become one of the most important anti-trust actions ever undertaken by the government. Total assets of those indicted probably amount to several times as much as any previous group taken to task by the government in a single anti-trust case.

Officials said several of the major companies have property and holdings throughout the world, and that the personal fortunes of the 58 individuals alone would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Meanwhile, officials decline to make any comment on progress in the investigation of collusive bidding on government purchases, but it was understood considerable evidence had been gathered which tended to show collusion between companies within several individual industries.

The investigation is being made at the direct request of President Roosevelt who cooperated with the justice department by asking all department heads to go through their files and report all instances of identical bidding.

SOLONS VOTE APPROVAL FOR PENSION OF $45

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 5.—(UP)—In a last minute maneuver, old age pension advocates yesterday forced the Republican state assembly to go on record supporting a proposed amendment to the state constitution providing a minimum of $45 a month to persons over 60 years of age.

The action came from the floor after a resolutions committee submitted a platform referring vaguely to the old age pension question. Pensioners, on the floor forced a vote on the issue and secured over a two to one majority from the 1,216 delegates.

OHIO DIRECTOR ASKS BOOST FOR PLAY PROJECTS

Officials and business leaders met in the WPA center, E. Main street, Wednesday to hear Noel L. Petree, state director of WPA recreation projects, urge local support for the program during the Fall and Winter.

Efforts are being made to continue the program, directed by Harold Hoy, through the year. Many activities remain for the late Summer.

Petree asked that civic leaders give their support in an effort to obtain school buildings and other halls for recreation purposes. Several hundred children are being cared for this Summer at various school grounds in the city and county.

Persons attending the meeting were Mayor W. J. Graham, Mrs. Lillian Moore, of the board of education, Mrs. E. L. Crist and Mrs. James I. Smith of the Child Conservation league, Ralph May of the commissioners, Charles Garner of the Eagles, John C. Goeller and Harry Steinhauser of council, W. E. Wallace and Mack Parrett of the Chamber of Commerce, and Fred C. Clark and S. G. Rader of the Rotary club.

largest received previously being the 235,000 signatures submitted for the vote on the tax limitation.

John Caren, executive secretary to the governor, said that between 50,000 and 100,000 more signatures expected during the night and early morning would be filed today, although Myers said they would not be considered as filed unless the necessity should arise because of invalid signatures.

The petitions will be sent to the various county boards of election for checking, and, after examination, the boards will certify to the secretary of state the number of qualified signatures on each petition.

Provisions Listed

The question, "shall the constitutional amendment be adopted?" will then be placed upon the November ballot by the secretary of state, with spaces provided for a "yes" or "no" answer.

The petition as submitted today says "be it resolved by the people of Ohio that the constitution of the state of Ohio be amended by the adoption of a new section to be known as section 13 of article 12, which section shall read as follows:

"Section 12 on and after November 11, 1936, no excise tax shall be levied or collected upon the sale or purchase of food for human consumption off the premises where sold."

In order to pass, the proposed amendment must receive a majority vote. As provided in the petition, it will become effective in November.

harm Miss Astor's career in the movies, were trying to arrange an amicable, out of court session. Miss Astor's employer, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was said to be alarmed by court revelations that have linked her name with that of George S. Kaufman, the playwright, and was bringing pressure on Miss Astor. There was no confirmation of these reports and Miss Astor's actions indicated that if there had been pressure, she had resisted it.

Probe Continues

Representatives of her attorneys prepared to leave for Tampa, Fla., to take depositions from persons said to be in a position to swear that Dr. Thorpe lived there with Mrs. Lillian Miles as man and wife in 1928. Mrs. Miles was an interested spectator at the court sessions where Miss Astor confessed her love affair with Kaufman. Earlier one of Miss Astor's witnesses had named her as among four women she said had spent nights in Dr. Thorpe's bedroom.

Judge Goodwin J. Knight held Miss Astor's diary—which she said Dr. Thorpe had "stolen" from her home—and he will determine when the hearing resumes what part of it will go into the court record. He indicated that he would admit only those parts that bear directly on the point at issue—whether Miss Astor or Thorpe shall have custody of their daughter. Thorpe's attorneys indicated they would insist on the admission of all the diary, on the ground that it all bore directly on their contention that Miss Astor is not a fit mother.

Continues Film Work

Meanwhile, Miss Astor worked on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot filming "Dodsworth." Her employer, Samuel Goldwyn, obtained the postponement of the trial, ostensibly so that the filming would not be delayed.

"I'm only interested in the truth," she said. "I don't care who it hurts. I want my baby."

"My testimony speaks for itself. I said my friendship for Mr. Kaufman was well known to my husband and there is very little that need be added to that."

John Barrymore, famous stage and screen lover named by Thorpe's attorneys as a possible witness, was removed, at least temporarily, as a figure in the case by a heart specialist's report to superior court. It would endanger Barrymore's life to appear as a witness, the specialist said. Barrymore is in a rest home and it will be six to eight weeks before he has recovered sufficiently from a strained heart muscle to subject himself to any excitement without danger.

G. O. P. SELECTS MT. STERLING FOR OHIO OPENING

Ohio Republicans will gather in Mt. Sterling, home town of John W. Bricker, G. O. P. nominee for governor, either August 17 or 18 to formally open the state campaign. The meeting was decided at a conference of the Republican state campaign committee in Columbus Tuesday evening.

The promised visit of Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, candidate for the vice presidency, may force a change in the date for the Mt. Sterling meeting.

The nine-member campaign committee, with Ed Schorr of Cincinnati as chairman, includes Charles R. Frederickson of Coshocton, Mrs. Mary L. Forrest of Cleveland, W. Dale Dunifon of Van Wert, R. C. Snyder of Norwalk, Louis H. Brush of Canton, Nolan Boggs of Toledo, John S. Knight of Akron, and Wilson Heisey of Newark.

Dunifon, assistant attorney general, is Bricker's representative on the committee. Heisey is president of Ohio Landon-for-President clubs.

He said he believed the council would vote to suspend.

Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers union, conferred with Green immediately before the council went into session for its momentous decision.

He said he will attend the meeting of the council and participate in the decision although he believed that council members al-

Dubinsky's decision to attend today's meeting apparently was concurred in by Lewis and other members of the CIO group who have steadfastly refused to attend sessions of the heresy trial in which they were accused of insurrection and dual unionism.

"The situation doesn't look so good," Dubinsky said. He would not discuss the specific subjects of his conversation with Green. Green, however, denied that any peace proposal providing a 30-day ultimatum to CIO to disband had been presented.

THE BADGE OF WEALTH

NOWHERE else in the world, they say, is practically everybody willing to admit that he is out for all the money he can make; yet nowhere else is money, once gained, treated with such disrespect by its possessors. In fact, a very rich American who does not give away a large part of his possessions, is regarded as rather a dubious fellow.

We are all after money and yet we do not object to parting with money as soon as we get it. What is the answer? It is that we do not really care any more about money than do other peoples, but that we go after it in America simply because there is nothing else for a man to go after. It is human to crave distinction, and the easiest way to win distinction is to acquire great riches.

The esteem of worthy men is, of course, the only real distinction attainable by any man, anywhere; and it is the only distinction a truly great American desires. But the truly great are such rare birds that they may be disregarded in any calculation involving the masses of the population. Most people are less concerned about being actually superior than about securing somehow a badge of superiority.

Now we've reached the point where detectives call it a "mysterious death" if they can't find a bullet hole.

America's non-membership in the League of Nations spared us some embarrassment when poor old Haile Selassie got up and called aces, aces.

PRAIRIE FARMERS HIT TRAILS WEST

HERREID, S. D.—Every day, traveling westward through Miles City, Montana, there passes one of the strangest and at the same time most pathetic caravans in the world. It is an exodus—a flight of many thousands of homeless, futureless, aged farmers and their families, broke, lost, finished.

Miles City is a port of entry for Montana and the West, and through it, like sand through the neck of an hour-glass, streams this horde of the destitute from the great plains section. They are going west once more, just as their fathers and grandfathers did before them. But this time they're not pioneers, they're not breaking soil or paving the way. This time they're starting all over again, hoping for land, work and food.

What most of them don't realize — it wouldn't make much difference if they did — is that there is little room for them in the West. The Pacific coast is settled, California, Oregon, Washington don't want and can't take droves of unemployed and homeless refugees. Already the scourge of the coast is the "fruit-picking tramp."

DESOLATION

Where do these families come from? Why have they left? Where are they going? The combined answers lie in the story of the Bjornsons of Herreid, South Dakota, typical farmers of the great plains typical sufferers from the drought, and soon to become typical wanderers in the West.

Herreid stands in the middle of a hot, lifeless, arid plain. A few weather-beaten farm houses and a filling station mark the "town" itself. The Bjornsons live three miles out, on the dry, hard waste. The road to their farm is strewn with dead jack-rabbits, gophers and birds. A wire fence trails along, broken, dragging.

There is no sign of life at the Bjornsons'. A dirty gray house, the windows closed, blinds down, porch broken. Across a flat patch of soil is a barn. Between the two stands a wind-mill, its vanes broken, the big round tank at the base dry and empty. By the barn are a few farm implements, rusted, unused for many months. A brood of dirty chickens peck at the parched earth. A woman comes to the door.

Despite the years of wind and sun, Mrs. Bjornson still preserves some traces of neatness. She smooths her wrinkled dress and we can see past her into the house. It too is neat, but bare. Two small children play on the floor. Her husband is off with a relief gang working on the roads for the day.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

In his Congressional biography, Candidate Lemke lists his recreations as "gardening and going to the zoo" . . . Roosevelt pronounces "drought" as if it were "drouth". Wallace pronounces it "drouth". Webster accepts both, preferring "drouth" . . . Asked if he were not once a member of the Republican Party which he now excommunicates, Ickes replied, "Yes, but I am not like Lot's wife. I am going straight ahead."

READ THIS FIRST:

Gay Elwell, check girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she files in at dinner party at the request of Dr. Wilson, a club member. One of them is Brock Carter. Gay has a date with him but leaves him in a huff when he becomes intoxicated and too attentive. Gay is attracted by Wayne Adams but he has shown little interest in her. She goes to the opening of a new night club with Christian Scott, elderly millionaire. At Rose Heath Gay meets Wayne Adams and they stroll on the terrace for a talk after he has told her he believes she is a little racketeer.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 14

SOMETHING compelled Gay to be honest as she stood on the terrace with Wayne Adams.

"I don't exactly hate you."

But he didn't seem to be listening. He began to speak like a man who feels a strong urge to clarify his own thoughts in words.

"I owe you an explanation. I don't usually interfere in other people's affairs, and I hate it. But in this case it's necessary. You see, Gay, I'm all out of sympathy with this playing-around stuff. It's a waste of time. I happen to be 28, and Brock's 26. We're not kids any more. We've got to get to work, if we're ever going to be successful!"

He looked very intense, very much in earnest, as he stood there. His hands gripped the railing almost savagely.

"And so I'm ruthless, when something gets in my way. I've learned that business is a brutal, cold-blooded game of using people, or discarding them. I've thrown a lot of illusions overboard. From now on, I intend to play the game according to official rules. That's why I'm telling you again, to lay off Brock. I need him right now; he's a vital necessity in my plans. So—hands off!"

Gay said nothing. She drew her evening wrap about her shoulders, shivering a little.

She might have said, "I don't want Brock. You can have him, or Peggy, or anyone else." But for sheer willfulness she remained silent.

"Besides," Wayne went on, more quietly, "I'm telling you for your own good that Brock really intends to marry Peggy Pennell. He's giving you a strong play—but you're too wise a girl not to realize that with him, nine-tenths of the fun is in the chase. He's a high-pressure boy till he gets what he wants, then—phfft!" The sound was expressive.

"I like Brock," Gay declared peremptorily. "He's lots of fun to go round with."

"Even if you had to run out on him, at the Goat's Nest?"

"Even so."

Wayne laughed. "Obstinate, aren't you? Well, I brought you out here to make friends, and I'm hanging it badly. What I wanted to say—I'm giving a party Thursday night, in my mountain-top home."

"Mountain-top?"

"I've just leased the penthouse apartment, at the Devonshire. Moved in the other day. Would you care to come to my house-warming?"

Gay's eyes widened with delighted and incredulous amazement. What a bewildering contradiction Wayne Adams was! First he called her a racketeer, then in the next breath, invited her to be guest at his apartment!

"How gorgeous!" she exclaimed, with passionate eagerness. "I'll adore to come. Next Thursday?"

Queerly her mind linked up with Jean. With the memory of a promise to Jean.

Next Thursday evening! Jean could easily be put off. But Jean couldn't. It was an important date, Gay knew. A home town sweetheart. Besides, she had given her word.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Gay began, hesitantly. "I just remembered—"

"A previous engagement?" He

Gay lifted her face to be kissed again.

finished the sentence for her, quite indifferently. "I understand, and it's quite all right."

But he didn't, he couldn't understand, Gay told herself wretchedly. He'd think she simply didn't want to accept the invitation.

Silence. Long. Unbroken. Embarrassing.

Wayne took a cigarette from his case, and the flare of the match showed Gay the cool reserve of his eyes. But before he had lighted his cigarette, a voice from out of the darkness behind them surprised them both. A voice thick with many highballs.

"Shay, let my girl alone. Why'd you steal my girl?"

A small, almost boyish figure lurched across the bridge, and swung Gay about by the shoulder.

"Whash idea, running out on me like this?"

"You've made a mistake," Wayne laughed. But the stranger snarled, "Shush your trap," reached up, struck Wayne a glancing blow on the jaw, and caught Gay again.

"Ain't you my girl? You'll do, 's same!"

It was no trick for Wayne to free Gay, tackle his underweight assailant, and brush him clear off the bridge. The stranger lay prone for a moment in a clump of bushes, then rose unsteadily, gravely dusted himself, and teetering on his heels observed grandly, "I shew I was wrong. All wrong. I es-cuse you," and made off to the road-house.

Gay's laugh was shaky. "M-my noble hero! You saved my life!"

"From a fate worse than death, perhaps," Wayne grinned. He was smiling at her, Gay noticed happily, as he had smiled that first time they met. That questioning, intimate smile that said, more plainly than words, "You are adorable!"

Without speaking, Wayne caught her to him, and kissed her. With equal abruptness, released her.

Then, for the first time in her life, to her own utter surprise, Gay walked straight into a man's arms—into Wayne Adams' arms—and lifted her face to be kissed again.

"A table for one?" asked the head waitress.

"Just one, please," replied Gay.

She tried to look entirely unconcerned, as though having tea in a smart restaurant at five o'clock in the afternoon were something she was quite accustomed to. If only Jean could see her now! Or Aunt Sophie!

A waitress, picturesque in green and white uniform, laid a menu at Gay's place.

"Cinnamon toast, and a pot of orange pekoe tea," said Gay, after a leisurely examination of the menu. She had decided, when she left the Pontchartrain club 10 minutes ago, that she'd order exactly those two things. Even in an expensive restaurant like Tabby's, toast and tea couldn't cost very much.

The waitress hurried away, and Gay glanced shyly about her. This was nice. So much more fun than dashing into the help's dining room at the Pontchartrain, and eating leftovers with the elevator girls. Of course, at the club she could have had dinner free, and this little venture into a tea-time world of fashionable young matrons and debutantes would cost too overwhelming that this has made for a stronger generation.

"Girls nowadays exposing their legs and smoking and overtaxing their strength at athletics," grunts the old fogey. "No wonder they have nervous breakdowns. They didn't have such things in my day."

Oh! didn't they? Let's look at the evidence. Here is an excerpt from a medical magazine of the seventies:

"If we compare the condition of women of refined society, where we rarely find one who does not suffer from backache, headache, pain or discomfort of some kind, with the working peasants of the same latitude, we can with difficulty believe that they sprang from the same stem."

And the cause of the bad health of our grandmothers? Dr. Mary Hallowell, in 1884, had this to say: "We have only to look at a fashionably dressed woman to see how she offends the laws of physics and physiology. Nature says that the feet should rest firmly and flatly upon the ground. Fashion cramps them into ridiculously small shoes, the heels of which are so situated as to make the weakest part of the foot bear all the weight of the body. And again, they are so high as to throw the body out of equilibrium when she walks, and consequently to weaken and impair the spine, and to so change the center of gravity in the body as to produce dislocation of the pelvic viscera."

"But the article of dress which is the greatest source of the ill health of women is that which causes pressure about the middle of the body, reducing the waist measure from three to fifteen inches."

"Another cause of poor health in women is the neglect of exercise and physical development. In most of our cities today may be found hundreds of women who do not walk a mile a day for weeks together, and many more who have never engaged in any exercise which calls forth the exercise of other muscles than those employed in the quietest locomotion."

"Let us imagine a boy and girl about the same age, say six years, under the same home influence. The little girl must not romp through the green fields, fish or wade in the brook during the summer; she will ruin her clothing, become sunburnt and freckled, and as for taking off her shoes and stockings to paddle in the brook—oh, horrors! could any fashionable mother hear of the proposition without a shock to her nerves?"

Let us be thankful such restricted lives for women are a thing of the past.

"You'd better take a walk, around five o'clock. Get some fresh air. Suppose you run along now, but be back by six sharp. Jimmy can take the checking while you're gone."

THE BADGE OF WEALTH

NOWHERE else in the world, they say, is practically everybody willing to admit that he is out for all the money he can make; yet nowhere else is money, once gained, treated with such disrespect by its possessors. In fact, a very rich American who does not give away a large part of his possessions, is regarded as rather a dubious fellow.

We are all after money and yet we do not object to parting with money as soon as we get it. What is the answer? It is that we do not really care any more about money than do other peoples, but that we go after it in America simply because there is nothing else for a man to go after. It is human to crave distinction, and the easiest way to win distinction is to acquire great riches.

The esteem of worthy men is, of course, the only real distinction attainable by any man, anywhere; and it is the only distinction a truly great American desires. But the truly great are such rare birds that they may be disregarded in any calculation involving the masses of the population. Most people are less concerned about being actually superior than about securing somehow a badge of superiority.

Now we've reached the point where detectives call it a "mysterious death" if they can't find a bullet hole.

America's non-membership in the League of Nations spared us some embarrassment when poor old Haile Selassie got up and called aces, aces.

Air conditioning is in operation in trains, subways, theaters, hotels and hospitals and may presently extend to popular songs.

BUSINESS SPEED ON

THIS WRITER has ploughed through columns of business predictions. Most of them sound 1928-ish.

For example, read what Prophet Charles G. Dawes says in predicting a still greater business rise:

"The amazing thing is the seeming inability of trade and economic commentators to see that this is an unusual year, as unusual a year as the panic year, and arising as an inevitable of that extreme."

It IS an unusual year. Despite the rise of Fascistic and Socialistic governments abroad (meaning the confiscation of many private enterprises), despite the worst drought in modern times in the United States, despite the heaviest debt burden on record, business swings ahead, security prices rise, plants put on more and more speed.

But will the bubble burst? If so, when?

It may be ungenerous to remark that General Dawes did not foresee the bursting of the bubble in 1929. It will be recalled that in 1932 the Hoover administration came to the aid of his Chicago bank with $90,000,000. Stockholders are being sued now by the government for recovery of the unpaid balance.

General Dawes is in a new bank, a prospering institution, and like the executives of many other prospering institutions he is optimistic.

But old, conservative financiers are not quite so optimistic. International bankers — who are an excellent barometer—are nervous and anxious. They know what it means when the world tries to spend its way out of debt.

The urge of farmers to repudiate their debts is merely the beginning.

REPUDIATION

Many economists view the present trend as leading toward debt repudiation—through one means or another.

It is a world-wide trend. Continental European countries whether Fascistic, Socialistic or plain conservative, are causing their money to decline in value.

How will the debts of the civil war in Spain be paid? Not at all. Impossible, in such an impoverished country. Attacks are made on socialization of industry there. Well, that occurs in countries in extremities. Italy has a "corporate state" for its industries. Governments lay their hands on every bit of available income — and it doesn't matter much which political factor has control of the government at the moment.

But repudiation in a country like Spain doesn't mean much. It is when repudiation reaches a great international trading country that the world wide effect is felt. In brief, what will France's course be (whether its regime be Socialistic, Fascistic or whatnot)?

The countries cannot help this new turn of events. They are victims of world-wide barriers against trade and exchange.

PRAIRIE FARMERS HIT TRAILS WEST

HERREID, S. D.—Every day, traveling westward through Miles City, Montana, there passes one of the strangest and at the same time most pathetic caravans in the world. It is an exodus—a flight of many thousands of homeless, futureless, aged farmers and their families, broke, lost, finished.

Miles City is a port of entry for Montana and the West, and through it, like sand through the neck of an hour-glass, streams this horde of the destitute from the great plains section. They are going west once more, just as their fathers and grandfathers did before them. But this time they're not pioneers, they're not breaking soil or paving the way. This time they're starting all over again, hoping for land, work and food.

What most of them don't realize — it wouldn't make much difference if they did — is that there is little room for them in the West. The Pacific coast is settled, California, Oregon, Washington don't want and can't take droves of unemployed and homeless refugees. Already the scourge of the coast is the "fruit-picking tramp."

DESOLATION

Where do these families come from? Why have they left? Where are they going? The combined answers lie in the story of the Bjornsons of Herreid, South Dakota, typical farmers of the great plains typical sufferers from the drought, and soon to become typical wanderers in the West.

Herreid stands in the middle of a hot, lifeless, arid plain. A few weather-beaten farm houses and a filling station mark the "town" itself. The Bjornsons live three miles out, on the dry, hard waste. The road to their farm is strewn with dead jack-rabbits, gophers and birds. A wire fence trails along, broken, dragging.

There is no sign of life at the Bjornsons'. A dirty gray house, the windows closed, blinds down, porch broken. Across a flat patch of soil is a barn. Between the two stands a wind-mill, its vanes broken, the big round tank at the base dry and empty. By the barn are a few farm implements, rusted, unused for many months. A brood of dirty chickens peck at the parched earth. A woman comes to the door.

Despite the years of wind and sun, Mrs. Bjornson still preserves some traces of neatness. She smooths her wrinkled dress and we can see past her into the house. It too is neat, but bare. Two small children play on the floor. Her husband is off with a relief gang working on the roads for the day.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

In his Congressional biography, Candidate Lemke lists his recreations as "gardening and going to the zoo" . . . Roosevelt pronounces "drought" as if it were "drouth". Wallace pronounces it "drouth". Webster accepts both, preferring "drouth" . . . Asked if he were not once a member of the Republican Party which he now excommunicates, Ickes replied, "Yes, but I am not like Lot's wife. I am going straight ahead."

COPYRIGHT L. C. PAGE & CO., INC. RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Gay Elwell, cheek girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she fills in at a dinner party at the request of Dr. Wilson, a club member. One of them is Breck Carter. Gay has a date with him but leaves him in a huff when he becomes intoxicated and too attentive. Gay is attracted by Wayne Adams but he has shown little interest in her. She goes to the opening of a new night club with Christian Scott, elderly millionaire. At Rose Heath Gay meets Wayne Adams and they stroll on the terrace for a talk after he has told her he believes she is a little racketeer.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 14

SOMETHING compelled Gay to be honest as she stood on the terrace with Wayne Adams.

"I don't exactly hate you." But he didn't seem to be listening. He began to speak like a man who feels a strong urge to clarify his own thoughts in words.

"I owe you an explanation. I don't usually interfere in other people's affairs, and I hate it. But in this case it's necessary. You see, Gay, I'm all out of sympathy with this playing-around stuff. It's a waste of time. I happen to be 28, and Breck's 26. We're not kids any more. We've got to get to work, if we're ever going to be successful!"

He looked very intense, very much in earnest, as he stood there. His hands gripped the railing almost savagely.

"And you, I'm ruthless, when something gets in my way. I've learned that business is a brutal, cold-blooded game of using people, or discarding them. I've thrown a lot of illusions overboard. From now on, I intend to play the game according to official rules. That's why I'm telling you again, to lay off Breck. I need him right now; he's a vital necessity in my plans. So—hands off!"

Gay said nothing. She drew her evening wrap about her shoulders, shivering a little.

She might have said, "I don't want Breck. You can have him, or Peggy, or anyone else." But for sheer willfulness she remained silent.

"Besides," Wayne went on, more quietly, "I'm telling you for your own good that Breck really intends to marry Peggy Pennell. He's giving you a strong play—but you're too wise a girl not to realize that with him, nine-tenths of the fun is in the chase. He's a high-pressure boy till he gets what he wants, then—phfft!" The sound was expressive.

"I like Breck," Gay declared peremptorily. "He's lots of fun to go round with."

"Even if you had to run out on him, at the Goat's Nest?"

"Even so."

Wayne laughed. "Obstinate, aren't you? Well, I brought you out here to make friends, and I'm bungling it badly. What I wanted to say—I'm giving a party Thursday night, in my mountain-top home."

"Mountain-top?"

"I've just leased the penthouse apartment, at the Devonshire Arms. Moved in the other day. Would you care to come to my house-warming?"

Gay's eyes widened with delighted and incredulous amazement. What a bewildering contradiction Wayne Adams was! First he called her a racketeer, then in the next breath, invited her to be the guest at his apartment!

"How gorgeous!" she exclaimed, with passionate eagerness. "I'll adore to come. Next Thursday—"

Queerly her mind linked up with Jean. With the memory of a promise to Jean.

Next Thursday evening! Jean could easily be put off. But Jean couldn't. It was an important date, Gay knew. A home town sweetheart. Besides, she had given her word.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Gay began, hesitantly. "I just remembered—"

"A previous engagement?" He

Gay lifted her face to be kissed again.

finished the sentence for her, quite indifferently. "I understand, and it's quite all right."

But he didn't, he couldn't understand, Gay told herself wretchedly. He'd think she simply didn't want to accept the invitation.

Silence. Long. Unbroken. Embarrassing.

Wayne took a cigarette from his case, and the flare of the match showed Gay the cool reserve of his expression. But before he had lighted his cigarette, a voice from out of the darkness behind them surprised them both. A voice thick with many highbells.

"Shay, let my girl alone. Why'd you steal my girl?"

A small, almost boyish figure lurched across the bridge, and swung Gay about by the shoulder.

"Whash idea, running out on me like this?"

"You've made a mistake," Wayne laughed. But the stranger snarled, "Shush your trap," reached up, struck Wayne a glancing blow on the jaw, and caught Gay again.

"Ain't you my girl? You'll do, 'jus' same!"

It was no trick for Wayne to free Gay, tackle his underweight assailant, and brush him clear off the bridge. The stranger lay prone for a moment in a clump of bushes, then rose unsteadily, gravely dusted himself, and teetering on his heels observed grandly, "I shree I was wrong. All wrong. I es-cuse you," and made off to the road-house.

Gay's laugh was shaky. "M-my noble hero! You saved my life!"

"From a fate worse than death," perhaps, Wayne grinned. He was smiling at her, Gay noticed happily, as he had smiled that first time they met. That questioning, intimate smile that said, more plainly than words, "You are adorable!" Without speaking, Wayne caught her to him, and kissed her. With equal abruptness, released her.

Then, for the first time in her life, to her own utter surprise, Gay walked straight into a man's arms—into Wayne Adams' arms—and lifted her face to be kissed again.

"A table for one?" asked the head waitress.

"Just one, please," replied Gay.

She tried to look entirely unconcerned, as though having tea in a smart restaurant at five o'clock in the afternoon were something she was quite accustomed to. If only Jean could see her now! Or Aunt Sophie!

A waitress, picturesque in green and white uniform, laid a menu at Gay's place.

"Cinnamon toast, and a pot of orange pekoe tea," said Gay, after a leisurely examination of the menu. She had decided, when she left the Pontchartrain club 10 minutes ago, that she'd order exactly those two things. Even in an expensive restaurant like Tabby's, toast and tea couldn't cost very much.

The waitress hurried away, and Gay glanced shyly about her. This was nice. So much more fun than dashing into the help's dining room at the Pontchartrain, and eating leftovers with the elevator girls. Of course, at the club she could have had dinner free, and this little venture into a tea-time world of fashionable young matrons and debutantes would cost money she really couldn't afford.

But even so, Gay didn't regret her extravagance.

She'd been out of sorts all day, and this being Thursday—tonight she must fulfill the promise she'd made, and take on extra duty so that Jean could keep her big date. Surely, Gay told herself, she deserved this moment of amusement, between two long stretches of tedious work. It would compensate just a little for missing Wayne Adams' party.

Mr. Carberry had proved quite amiable. He wasn't such a bad sort, under that pompous manner.

"Sure—it's all the same to me if you want to wear yourself out," he had said, when Gay asked permission to relieve Jean from night duty. Then he himself had made the suggestion which so appealed to Gay, and sent her scampering off for an hour of unexpected liberty.

"You'd better take a walk, around five o'clock. Get some fresh air. Suppose you run along now; but be back by six sharp. Jimmy can take the checking while you're gone."

How Girls' and Women's Activities Changed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I AM OLD enough to remember when the first women golfers in our city made their first round.

Dire consequences were predicted by the elder generation for that faint in the face of Nature. The girls were ruining their health. The female body was not made for that sort of thing. Croquet was quite strenuous enough for any woman. And it is a wonder how they ever got around the course with the clothes they wore. Stiff skirts to their ankles, and a dozen petticoats, starched shirtwaists with collars and cuffs, and sailor hats riddled with hatpins.

There may be a few left who think there is something wrong with the way girls are allowed to dress and run and swim and play tennis and golf and everything else in this day and age, but they must be very few, because the evidence is too overwhelming that this has made for a stronger generation.

"Girls nowadays exposing their legs and smoking and overtaking their strength at athletics," grunts the old fogey. "No wonder they have nervous breakdowns. They didn't have such things in my day."

Oh! didn't they? Let's look at the evidence. Here is an excerpt from a medical magazine of the seventies:

"If we compare the condition of women of refined society, where we rarely find one who does not suffer from backache, headache, pain or discomfort of some kind, with the working peasants of the same latitude, we can with difficulty believe that they sprang from the same stem."

And the cause of the bad health of our grandmothers? Dr. Mary Halliwell, in 1884, had this to say: "We have only to look at a fashionably dressed woman to see how she offends the laws of physics and physiology. Nature says that the feet should rest firmly and flatly upon the ground. Fashion cramps them into ridiculously small shoes, the heels of which are so situated as to make the weakest part of the foot bear all the weight of the body. And again, they are so high as to throw the body out of equilibrium when she walks, and consequently to weaken and impair the center of gravity in the body as to produce dislocation of the pelvic viscera."

"But the article of dress which is the greatest source of the ill health of women is that which causes pressure about the middle of the body, reducing the waist measure from three to fifteen inches."

"Another cause of poor health in women is the neglect of exercise and physical development. In most of our cities today may be found hundreds of women who do not walk a mile a day for weeks together; and many more who have never engaged in any exercise other than those employed in the quietest locomotion."

"Let us imagine a boy and girl about the same age, say six years, under the same home influence. The little girl must not romp through the green fields, fish or wade in the brook during the summer; she will ruin her clothing, become sunburnt and freckled, and as for taking off her shoes and stockings to paddle in the brook—oh, horrors! could any fashionable mother hear of the proposition without a shock to her nerves?"

Let us be thankful such restricted lives for women are a thing of the past.

The Yankees are in — If anyone doubts that just remind the skeptical person that the New Yorkers defeated Left Grove Tuesday for the first time in two years — Paul Miller, who saw the Yankees and Indians Saturday, says Joe DiMaggio is plenty sweet, that everyone he catches a fly ball he is in position to throw — And that Hal Trosky has developed into one of the keenest fielding first sackers in addition to his ability to clout ***

Pytlak Is Jinxed

He coached the famous Dallas Folden Cyclones to National A. A. U. titles in both basketball and track ***

Four Olympic team members — Jesse Owens and Dave Albritton of the track team and Lou Laurie and Jackie Wilson of the boxing team — either are or were students at East Tech High school in Cleveland.

Margaret Sullivan, Buster Crabbe to Star on Ballew's Program

SCREEN ACTRESS TO TAKE PART IN DRAMATIC STORY

Morton Bowe of Jack Benny's Program With Perkins

Margaret Sullivan, rising young leading lady of the screen, comes back to the radio Saturday as Smith Ballew's guest in Chateau. On the same program to be over a WEAF-NBC network at 8:30 (EST) are Joe Cook, Larry Adler, Judy Garland and Larry "Buster" Crabbe.

Miss Sullivan will play the lead role in a radio drama as the headline act on this variety bill. Since her introduction on the screen in "Only Yesterday" her popularity has grown rapidly until she is one of the better box office "draws" of Hollywood.

Joe Cook, a recent performer in Chateau, returns by popular demand with another bright comedy sketch. Joe is a long-time favorite of Broadway and the radio.

Larry Adler, the youngster who lifted harmonica playing to the status of an art, returned a few months back from Europe where he played for the King of Sweden. He first became known via the microphone and later was in demand for stage appearances.

Judy Garland, a thirteen-year-old girl who was last year signed to a movie contract by M-G-M, sings popular tunes. She was introduced to the radio audience by Wallace Beery in Shell Chateau last fall.

"Buster" Crabbe, screen hero of "Tarzan the Fearless," "Hold 'Em Yale," "Wanderer of the Wasteland" and other similar pictures, is also the hero of young America. Youngsters everywhere delight in his adventurous progress in the films. He was a leading member of the American Olympic swimming team in 1932.

Music by Victor Young's orchestra, the Golden Shell Girls and Smith Ballew complete the show.

MORTON BOWE HEARD

Morton Bowe, tenor on Jack Benny's summer program, headlines the list of guest stars on Ray Perkins' "Stars Over the Great Lakes" broadcast from WTAM and WLW Wednesday evening at 10:15.

Helpful Harry, who has gained fame with eastern housewives for his household tips, will combine humor with practical advice when he is interviewed by Perkins.

Alice O'Leary, popular WLW torch singer, and the jug band from Mammy's Cabin on the colorful midway of the Great Lakes Exposition round out the program.

BAILEY AXTON ON NBC

Bailey Axton, graduate of WLW, is now heard with Harold Levy's orchestra over NBC. Milton J. Cross, the NBC opera announcer handles Axton's programs. The young tenor joined the Nation's Station two years ago after leaving a Pittsburgh, Kans., newspaper, where he was a reporter.

Bob Burns let himself in for plenty of trouble by playing the piano in a Music Hall broadcast. Now, wherever he goes, up goes the demand: "to the piano and play, Burns." At a party recently, he finally consented to play his own Arkansas version of "Turkey in the Straw." "I ain't going anywhere where there's a piano," he says now.

Add Radio Retorts: "How many people are in the audience here during this broadcast?" asks Frank (Bring 'Em Back Alive) Buck before appearing on the air with Frank Fay. "We don't know," said Fay. "You see, Frank, they always roll in the aisles after our first catch line and you can't count 'em when they're all scrambled up like that."

A scare swept over the cast of the Music Hall when the genial master of ceremonies, Bing Crosby, discovered five minutes before the show was to go on the air that he had lost the lyrics to "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee." Members of Jimmy Dorsey's band and the cast hurriedly volunteered one line at a time until they thought they had the entire song assembled. Then Bing got Wolfe Gilbert, who wrote the lyrics, on the telephone and confirmed the accuracy of everybody's memory.

AIRPLANES REPORTED FOR LAND JOURNEY

Department of Commerce
Find Other Carriers
Not Suitable

HONOLULU, Aug. 5. — (UP) Fast land planes, instead of heavier and slower seaplanes may be used on America's proposed new air route from Honolulu to New Zealand and Australia, according to William T. Miller, superintendent of airways of the United States Department of Commerce.

Miller is abroad the coast guard cutter Itasca on a tour of the three little islands of Baker, Jarvis and Howland which are to serve as bases and intermediary stops for the new service. Before leaving, however, he indicated that there are three specific reasons why it is likely that land planes rather than sea planes will be used on the new 5,000 mile route to the Antipodes. These are: The islands already have landing areas that could be used in an emergency even in their present condition.

Water surrounding the islands is too rough for seaplanes to make a safe landing and tie up for refueling and inspection.

To Start Grading Fields

The federal government on the next trip of the Itasca will send a tractor and grading equipment to level off the areas and prepare them for landing fields.

"Even in their present condition," Miller declared, "I would not hesitate to land a plane on any one of the three islands. The possible landing fields are a mile long, facing directly into the prevailing winds, and are sufficiently wide for all purposes."

"So far as seaplanes basing there, one important factor must be considered. Along the Pan-American Airway route from Honolulu to Manila, the planes are able to land and take off in sheltered lagoons, forming a natural landing area when the coral heads are blasted out. This is true on Midway and Wake particularly. But unlike those two islands, Baker, Jarvis and Howland have no lagoons whatever. The sea beats directly upon the shore, the surf booming and piling up at some seasons of the year until a landing even by a boat is dangerous."

Permanent Colonies Planned

Miller declared that the permanent development and colonization of the islands is planned on a serious scale. Washington officials are on their way there on the present trip of the Itasca to erect an administrative and other permanent buildings. Materials for these were carried aboard the Itasca.

"That the federal government is taking a long range view of this work," Miller declared, "by the fact that part of the Itasca's cargo consisted of hundreds of small trees and thousands of seeds. These trees and seeds will be planted on each of the three islands where the colonies will have such plants as purple and yellow passion fruit, sea grapes, breadfruit, Hawaiian oranges, cashew nuts and ironwoods. These orchards in themselves will furnish a certain native food supply to the colonists."

Miller pointed out that the federal government's colonization project on the three islands will be operated on a continuing basis.

Confident of Success

"The project is permanent," he said. "It is a vanguard of commercial aviation linking America with the Antipodes, just as the present air route of Pan-American from Honolulu to Manila links America and the Orient."

"When flying equipment is ready, essential weather data will be ready. Complete weather stations are being established on this trip on Jarvis and Howland with instruments for both ground and upper-air observation. Baker Island, being but a short distance south of Howland, will have instruments for surface observation only."

"When the full story of this colonization of the tiny mid-Pacific island is told in years to come, the young American school boys of Honolulu will take their place along with the heroes of the American migration to the west."

Commander Fletcher W. Brown of the Itasca probably has seen more than any other man of the actual colonization.

Remember When?

Horse traders held a big reunion at Adelphi.

In August, 1913, horse traders from all sections of Central Ohio held a reunion and camped on the Jacob Koch farm near Adelphi. Approximately 75 traders, some with their families, took part in the event. About 200 horses were brought to the camp. Scores of horses were sold and traded during the celebration. Many farmers and liverymen of Pickaway county participated in the sales.

AUSTRALIA AIDS TRIBES IN NEED

QUEENSLAND, Australia (UP) The aboriginal department of the Queensland government is establishing a new economic system of production and sale among the black native tribes that might be regarded as almost communistic if it were not for the fact that the system will be administered by missionaries instead of Soviet commissars.

The idea is to make the Australian blacks entirely self-supporting through the development of their own native industries and the sale of their products. Model river villages are being established on the Weipa, Arakun and Mitchell rivers, in which natives may live their own lives free of interference from whites.

The principal industries to be developed are agriculture and fishing and missionaries will act as agents for all contact necessary with the outside world.

On some of the Torres Strait islands the natives work their own shell and trapping fishing fleets on a community basis and have their own stores as well.

At Thursday Island, natives are being taught shipbuilding and the repair and care of marine engines. All craft exceeding what the natives may need for their own fishing fleets will be sold through the missionary agents for the benefit of the community funds.

On Mornington Island, a salt works is to be built for the manufacture of salt for the curing of fish — one more step toward establishing complete self-sufficiency for the natives of the islands. It also will sell excess product to the outside world under the new community economic system.

HAWAII DEFENDS U. S. INSTITUTION OF QUICK LUNCH

HONOLULU, (UP)—The International Labor Office in Geneva, which frowns on the U. S. business man's half hour lunch as unhealthy, would smile if it could see how they do it in Honolulu.

A survey showed that it is not uncommon for executives in Hawaii to take from one to three hours for lunch. Stenographers, however, like their mainland sisters, gulp their food in 15 minutes and spend the rest of their hour shopping, getting their hair fixed or dropping in on friends for the latest gossip.

The Labor Office said America's half-hour lunch snatching causes bad digestion, exposes workers to nervous fatigue and promotes low productivity and accidents.

Dr. Frederick E. Trotter, president of the territorial board of health, took exception to the verdict, however, holding that a half-hour lunch is all that anyone needs, provided he does not bolt his food.
